SITUATION REPORT for NY, NJ, CT, PA and DC
12 April 2021

GENERAL SITUATION

New York Gov. Andrew Cuomo announced today that the state's colleges and universities will get allocations of Covid-19 vaccines to administer vaccinations directly to their student populations.

Gov. Cuomo said that graduations ceremonies will be permitted in New York state starting May 1, with limits on capacity based on venue size and whether they are indoor or outdoor. Please click here for more information regarding the guidelines of indoor or outdoor graduation.

New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio said that NYC has administered five million vaccine doses, which the mayor said, “keeps us well on target for our overall goal, five million fully vaccinated New Yorkers in June”.

Mayor de Blasio announced today that the new Broadway vaccination site would not serve just Broadway workers but film and TV employees as well. He said that "we want the film and TV community to be part of our vaccination effort as well, we will welcome them to our Times Square vaccination center". There will also be a mobile vaccination unit for off-Broadway workers.

New York City: 51,000 students have opted back into NYC public schools to finish out the school year. Students in all grades will return on April 26.

New Jersey Governor Phil Murphy said that New Jersey’s goal of fully vaccinating 4.7 million residents, or 70% of the adult population by June 30, is still on track. The status report comes even though the state is expecting a significant slowdown in the delivery of Johnson & Johnson vaccines.

Washington, D.C.: The District reached an important milestone today; everyone age 16 or older is now eligible for the coronavirus vaccine. This is happening one week earlier than planned, a sign that the rollout is beginning to pick up. DC residents will have to pre-register on the District’s website. When an appointment becomes available, they will receive an invite via email.

Washington, D.C.: D.C. opens its first mass high-capacity vaccination site at Arena Stage. The site is located at the Walter E. Washington Convention Center, where the D.C. Health Department says it will distribute 2,500 vaccines in its first day. Entrance is on the L street side and appointments only – no walk ups.
