GENERAL SITUATION

The European Union has announced a plan called the “HERA Incubator” to combat the increased threat from coronavirus variants. The core function of the HERA Incubator will be to “boost preparedness, develop vaccines for the variants and increase industrial production.” It will receive €75 million in funding to develop specialized tests for new variants, and to support genomic sequencing across the EU. In addition, a clinical trial network which brings together 16 EU member states and five other countries including Switzerland and Israel will be created to exchange data and findings from trials.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) will open additional vaccination centers in New York next week, as part of its effort to potentially set up 100 mass vaccination sites nationwide. If the military has to man each of these stations, it’s possible that there could be 18,000 military personnel involved in putting in vaccines. The two sites are: York College in Jamaica, Queens and Medgar Evers College in Brooklyn – each able to vaccinate 3,000 people a day.

New York Gov. Andrew Cuomo announced four new mass vaccination sites in the state to increase the supply of doses in “socially vulnerable communities.” The sites in Buffalo, Rochester, Albany and Yonkers will be in partnership with the federal government with the goal of vaccinating 1,000 New Yorkers a day. The sites will come online March 3.

New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio said that New York City has fewer than 30,000 first doses of Covid-19 vaccine on hand. He noted that shipments of vaccines that were expected by Tuesday and Wednesday are delayed, thus, “we’re going to have to hold back appointments that New Yorkers need”. He further said that as many as 30,000 to 35,000 appointments or more might not be scheduled because the city does not have supply.

Mayor de Blasio said that New York City Releases COVID vaccination data by Zip Code. He said that it shows disparities across the boroughs that they’re trying to fight.

New Jersey Gov. Phil Murphy said that, as the state prepares for another winter storm, some Thursday COVID vaccine appointments are already being canceled. He added that people should check the state’s website for additional closure announcements. Two of the vaccine mega-sites — the Burlington County site at the Moorestown Mall and the Rockaway Townsquare location in Morris County — will be shut down for Thursday.
Connecticut Governor Ned Lamont announced that events at commercial venues in Connecticut, like weddings, will increase to 50% capacity on Friday, March 19 - up from 25%. Indoor attendance will be capped at 100 people and outdoors will allow up to 200 people.

Washington, D.C.: The Metropolitan Washington Airport Authority said that it will launch testing sites at Reagan National Airport and Dulles International Airport in March. The sites will be located before the security checkpoint and will “offer both PCR and rapid testing”.
