GENERAL SITUATION

There's a new step towards vaccinating children against COVID. A trial involving babies and young children is underway. Pfizer said that its vaccine is now being tested on children as young as six months old.

Dr. Anthony Fauci announced that he expects a decision when advisers to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention meet Friday, 23 April to discuss the pause in J&J’s single-dose vaccine. It was noted that the United States will likely move to resume Johnson & Johnson’s COVID-19 vaccine this coming week, possibly with restrictions or broader warnings after reports of some very rare blood clot cases, the government’s top infectious diseases expert said.

New York State Governor Andrew Cuomo announced that capacity at zoos and museums in New York State will increase to 50% starting April 26. Movie theaters will also be allowed to increase their capacity to 33% on April 26. Meantime, large indoor arenas can increase their capacity to 25% starting on May 19.

New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio announced that the American Museum of Natural History will open Friday, 23 April as a COVID-19 vaccination site in New York City. The site will focus initially on people who work in cultural institutions.

New York City: City-run vaccination sites are now taking walk-in appointments for anyone over the age of 50. Click here for a list of city-run vaccination sites.

New Jersey Governor Phil Murphy announced that New Jersey residents ages 16 and older will be eligible for the COVID vaccine starting today. 16 and 17-year-olds will need a parent or guardian to pre-register on their behalf. Anyone pre-registering is encouraged to provide an e-mail address to allow for a faster registration process. Gov. Murphy stated that the current pause on the Johnson & Johnson vaccine will not impact expanding eligibility. NJ residents can sign up here.

Connecticut Governor Ned Lamont announced that all restrictions for Connecticut businesses will be phased out by May 19. The governor said all outdoor restrictions will be lifted starting May 1. Restaurants will be allowed to serve alcohol without food and there will no longer be a table size limit. The curfew for businesses will be pushed back to 12 a.m. starting May 1. All other business restrictions will be phased out starting May 19. These restrictions will include size limits and social distancing rules for businesses such as large event venues, bars and nightclubs.

Washington, D.C.: D.C. opened walk-up vaccination sites for residents age 65 and older.
