GENERAL SITUATION

New York Gov. Andrew Cuomo announced today that New York is partnering with SOMOS Community Care with the goal of distributing one million vaccines in New York City. SOMOS is a network of nearly 2,500 providers throughout the five boroughs.

New York Mayor Bill de Blasio announced that there will be a dedicated COVID-19 vaccination site on Broadway for members of the theater industry. There will also be a mobile vaccination unit for off-Broadway workers. The city is placing pop-up COVID testing sites by Broadway theaters, and they are developing plans to manage crowds before and after shows.

A pop-up COVID vaccination site opened in Manhattan's Chinatown neighborhood today. Somos Community Care plans to administer shots to 700 people at the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association. It is the neighborhood's first pop-up vaccine facility and will operate through Saturday, 27 March.

Indoor amusement parks across New York are opening their doors just in time for spring and summer as the state continues to ease coronavirus restrictions. As of Friday, 26 March indoor family entertainment centers and recreational parks are allowed to reopen at 25% capacity. Face coverings, social distancing, temperature checks, frequent cleaning and other safety measures will be enforced.

New Jersey Gov. Phil Murphy announced today that a new group of residents will qualify for Covid-19 vaccines starting April 5. Those people include residents ages 55 and above, residents ages 16 and above with intellectual disabilities, members of the press and utility and construction workers, among others. The eligibility expansion comes as a new FEMA-run pilot community vaccination site opens at the New Jersey Institute of Technology in Newark on Monday, 5 April. The site will be able to administer up to 42,000 doses per week, Murphy said, adding that the doses administered there will be “above and beyond” the state’s own allocation of vaccine doses.

Connecticut Governor Ned Lamont announced that all CT residents 16-years-old and older will be eligible to sign up for the COVID-19 vaccine starting April 1.

Washington D.C. Mayor Muriel Bowser will expand vaccine eligibility to private drivers (such as Uber drivers); logistics, delivery, courier workers, media and mass communications employees on March 29. D.C. will close testing at Nationals Park after Friday, March 26, as the team prepares for Opening Day.
