GENERAL SITUATION

Dr. Mathai Mammen, Janssen’s global head of research and development said that Johnson & Johnson will apply to the US Food and Drug Administration next week for an emergency use authorization for its coronavirus vaccine. J&J said today that in the U.S. and seven other countries, the single-shot vaccine was 66% effective overall at preventing moderate to severe illness, and much more protective - 85% - against the most serious symptoms.

New York Governor Andrew Cuomo announced today that New York City restaurants will be allowed open indoor dining at 25% capacity beginning on Valentine’s Day, February 14. Restaurants in other parts of the state have already been allowed to open indoor dining at 50 percent capacity.

Governor Cuomo says weddings can restart on March 15 at 50% capacity of the venue or up to 150 patrons. Testing all patrons attending the event will be required. Local health departments will approve.

Governor Cuomo said today that New York State will receive 16% more vaccine doses for the next three weeks starting next week. Cuomo said New York has used all of the allocation that the state has received from weeks 1 through 6 and is now starting to use the 250,400 doses that have been arriving this week. The governor has asked local governments not to schedule vaccine appointments until they have the allocations in hand. A mass vaccination site will be opening at Yankee Stadium, but Cuomo did not confirm a date when it will come online.

New York City Mayor De Blasio outlined a plan to make way for more bikes and pedestrians on Brooklyn and Queensboro Bridges.

New Jersey Governor Phil Murphy said that the state is aware of a “technical issue” on the New Jersey Vaccine Scheduling System that caused double-booked appointments. He noted that the problem caused the state to “cancel a number of appointments that were erroneously double-booked”. He further noted that “we will work with those canceled on rescheduling their appointments at the nearest available time”.

Washington, D.C.’s child care workers are asking officials not to push back their COVID-19 vaccinations.
