GENERAL SITUATION

New York Gov. Andrew Cuomo plans to lift "virtually all" pandemic-related restrictions when 70% of adult New Yorkers have received at least one dose of a Covid-19 vaccine. Furthermore, New York state schools will no longer be mandated to require that students wear masks outdoors on school grounds. Cuomo added that local school districts may now make individualized restrictions but still must require masks indoors per US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention guidelines.

New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio announced today that NYC is adding free MetroCards to the selection of prizes it is offering in its vaccination incentives competition. New Yorkers 18 years and older who get their first dose at a city-run vaccine site this week can enter for a chance to win one of ten 6-packs of 30-day unlimited MetroCards - a total of 6 months of free transit. Winners will be notified weekly. Prizes are updated once a week through the beginning of July.

Mayor de Blasio announced that as COVID rates continue to decline in New York City, he wants to celebrate the city's reopening with a mega-concert in central Park. The mega-concert is tentatively set for August 21st. The mayor is aiming for the concert to be part of "Homecoming Week" in New York City and he has enlisted music producer Clive Davis to organize the big show.

New Jersey Gov. Phil Murphy announced that masks will not be required outdoors at New Jersey summer camps this summer. An updated guidance will be released on Wednesday, 9 June.
